Description

Pair of Empire-style children's gondola armchairs in cherry wood, resting on saber-shaped legs at the back and slightly curved front legs. The curved, winged backs end in slender volutes characteristic of the neoclassical aesthetic of the First Empire. The console-style armrests create a harmonious and balanced silhouette. The upholstery has been reupholstered in a fabric featuring wide red and ivory stripes, decorated with laurel wreaths and motifs inspired by imperial iconography. The finish is accentuated by a scattering of patinated upholstery tacks. These armchairs feature elegant proportions and considerable comfort, whether used as accent seating, around a desk, or in a reception room. Empire-style piece, 20th century.
