Description

Hammered iron table lamp by Léopold Gest, made in France around 1970. It rests on a circular wrought-iron base and features a sculptural structure composed of geometric forms and a distinctive central ring. The conical lampshade, made of stitched parchment, diffuses a warm light that highlights the craftsmanship of the metalwork. The piece evokes the creations of Léopold Gest, a leading figure in the postwar revival of the French decorative arts. France, circa 1970.
