Description

Italian sculptor (17th-18th century) - Pair of archaic lions. 30 x 12 x h 17 cm each. Pair of figures in carved walnut wood. The two lions, carved in the round, are depicted in a lying pose with their heads facing forward. Each figure bears a shaped block on its back, decorated with foliate motifs. The carving is competent and well-executed, effectively rendering the mane and forepaws. The wooden surface, uniformly dark in tone, shows a use patina consistent with the dating. Their modest dimensions and the conformation of the back suggest a likely original use as decorative elements applied to fine furniture. Condition report: Good state of preservation. Wear patina. Age-related signs consistent with the period. All shipments within the EU are free and professionally packaged. This
