Description

A large Chinese porcelain bowl (or basin) dating from the 19th century. With its generous diameter of 37 cm, this piece has substantial volume and a commanding presence, making it ideal for display as a centerpiece or on a pedestal. The interior is richly adorned with a polychrome enamel decoration in the "Famille Rose" style. The background features an asymmetrical composition of flowering branches and peonies, rendered with a beautifully vibrant color palette. The wide rim is framed by a geometric frieze of green latticework, punctuated by four multi-lobed medallions containing floral bouquets. The exterior features a plain white glaze, highlighting the curvature of the bowl. Condition Antique piece sold as-is, showing signs of age and its manufacturing process: Firing defects: inherent in
