Description

We present a curious snuffbox from the same collection.It is particularly interesting because the lid features a sizable rectangular bone plaque onto which a metal relief depicting a plowing scene--with oxen, a plow, and a farmer holding the plowshare--has been applied.The soil is represented by small pieces of mother-of-pearl.At the bottom of the lid is an inscription reading "Comtoise Nickel" that I have been unable to identify.Is this an advertisement for a company? Are the wooden borders made of nickel? I don't know.
