Description

A beautiful Photo Hall walnut travel camera for 13x18 format, circa 1895. It features a Victorius Claroscope lens, renowned for its sharpness and brightness, often used for portraits and landscapes, and a red leather bellows. Sold with 3 frames and its original carrying case. Photo-Hall was a French manufacturer of cameras, based in Paris, specifically at 5 rue Scribe. It was active primarily in the late 19th and early 20th centuries and became known for its high-quality view cameras, often made of walnut, with leather bellows and high-performance lenses for the time.
