Pair of half-moon-shaped console tables in mahogany and mahogany veneer, resting on four fluted legs, with white marble tops (a small chip on one corner) framed by an openwork bronze rail, one drawer on the front, A classic and elegant design from the late 18th or early 19th century, in the Louis XVI and Directoire styles. Not too large--less than one meter--and therefore easier to place. These console tables are presented in their original, aged condition; restoration is available in our workshop upon request.
