Description

Pair of Biedermeier chairs in light wood
Biedermeier period, first half of the 19th century
A charming pair of Biedermeier chairs in light wood, likely cherry, characterized by the understated and refined elegance typical of German and Austro-Hungarian furniture from the first third of the 19th century. The backs feature curved crossbars embellished with contrasting inlaid motifs; one is adorned with a small stylized rosette, the other with a central medallion. The clean lines, slightly curved side rails, and saber-shaped rear legs fully embody the Biedermeier aesthetic, which emphasizes balanced proportions and the quality of the wood. The seats are upholstered and covered with a striped floral fabric in shades of beige and cream, harmonizing with the warm tone of the
