Description

Sarcophagus-shaped inkwell made of fine marble, Rome, early 19th century, Grand Tour period. Grand Tour sarcophagus-shaped inkwells are 18th- and 19th-century luxury items inspired by Roman antiquities, designed for wealthy travelers who admired and collected archaeological artifacts. Crafted from materials such as marble, bronze, and lava stone, they are often decorated with bas-reliefs and cameos depicting mythological scenes or classical figures, with the body of the inkwell shaped like a sarcophagus or Roman tomb. Very good condition, minimal signs of wear. Dimensions L max 18 cm D max 9.5 cm Base 8 x 17 cm H 13 cm,5
