Description

Empire-style display cabinet in mahogany and gilded bronze, with a black marble top - 19th century
Elegant Empire-style display cabinet in flamed mahogany, featuring a glass door on the front and glass panels on the sides. It is adorned with two freestanding columns at the front, topped with chiseled and gilded bronze capitals, resting on bases also adorned with bronze details. The right cornice is surmounted by a veined black marble top. The upper band features gilded bronze decoration depicting a winged motif in the antique style, typical of the Empire decorative repertoire. The interior, made entirely of mahogany, features three shelves that provide an attractive display space for works of art, porcelain, or collections. With its harmonious proportions and high-quality materials, this
