Description

A rare lacquered wooden coffee table with a "finto tartaruga" (tortoiseshell-effect) design, accented with gold leaf and sky-blue highlights. This table is reminiscent of mid-18th-century Venetian pieces, in the style of the decorative motifs used on furniture belonging to patrician families (Pisani, Rezzonico, Grimani), and bears a resemblance to certain pieces preserved at the Palazzo Rezzonico. Its scalloped tabletop had, until recently, retained its original fabric covering--though it was heavily worn--which has since been replaced with aged leather. The lacquer and antique gilding are in excellent condition. The dynamic apron features a gilded floral medallion at its center and rests on four curved legs decorated with foliage motifs that extend the entire height of the piece. From a
