Description

A refined Lalique glass vase from the "Renoncules" series, produced in opalescent glass with a frosted upper section and a sculpted floral band. The ranunculus motif is rendered in soft relief, giving the piece a balanced decorative rhythm.

The interplay between the satin finish and the translucent, slightly blue-toned lower section enhances the depth of the design. The piece has a strong visual presence without being overly heavy, making it suitable for both display and interior styling.

The base carries the engraved mark "Lalique France", placing the piece in post-1945 production. René Lalique is widely regarded as a key figure in twentieth-century design, particularly through his work in glass.
