Description

Refined set of five carved wood panels, embellished with finely carved and ink-finished bone inserts, set in ebonized wood frames.

The five panels depict figures and settings in relief, with scenes of everyday life and idyllic landscapes. Male and female figures, as well as holy men, alternate among architecture and vegetation. This series of panels was used as decorative elements in homes or temples; thanks to their refinement, they lend a touch of class and oriental antiquity to any space. Chinese manufacture from the Qing period, around the mid-19th century.

Dimensions: H x W x D 99 x 38 x 1.5cm
