plus the two serving tongs. The pieces bear the various hallmarks of the House of Christofle. Several items are still preserved in their original packaging and cases, a testament to their particularly careful preservation. The Marly model, created in the late 19th century, remains one of the great classics of French silverware. Its decoration of shells and foliage embodies all the elegance of the Louis XV style. In good overall condition with slight signs of wear. Christofle, France, 20th century. Detailed dimensions and weight available upon request.
