Description

A pair of sturdy, luxurious Louis XVI candlesticks in silver-plated metal, mounted as a lamp with a tilting shade mechanism. The candlesticks are believed to date from the Napoleon III period and are richly adorned with garlands of motifs and fluting. The shaft is thick, giving them an opulent appearance. The mechanism designed to hold the lampshade is made of high-quality metal and can be adjusted as desired. The electrical wiring dates from the 1960s; while it is certainly still functional, it would look nicer to replace it with silk-covered wire that matches the future lampshade. On of the White glass candle is broken , it's easy to change it. The candlesticks, although they show some minor wear, are in very good condition, and their patina gives them undeniable charm.
