Description

A pair of oval floral still lifes from the mid-19th century, painted on canvas mounted on panel and set in beautiful gilded frames. A charming pair of floral still lifes featuring bouquets of roses, dahlias, daisies, and garden flowers, arranged against a dark background that highlights the delicate colors and the contours of the petals. The refined and decorative execution follows in the tradition of 18th- and 19th-century flower paintings. The soft color palette, dominated by powdery pinks, ivory whites, and luminous yellows, lends the pieces an elegant and intimate atmosphere. Please note minor wear on the paint surface, consistent with the age of the paintings.
