Pair of landscapes depicting Villa Borghese and the Pincio, oil on canvas, 19th-century Italy, Grand Tour
Giambattista Bassi (Massa Lombarda, February 20, 1784 - Rome, July 5, 1852) was an Italian painter. He was a highly acclaimed painter of landscapes for travelers on the Grand Tour. In Rome, he set up his studio in Via di Ripetta. He lived in Rome until his death. He distinguished himself as a respected landscape painter and was favoured by the city's nobility and also by numerous foreign collectors. He lived the best years of his artistic production from 1816 to 1826. He received commissions from Elizabeth Herve, Duchess of Devonshire, Ferdinand I of the Two Sicilies, Prince Henry of Prussia, Count Esterhazy and Lady Bentinck. Thanks to the success he achieved, he repeated some paintings
