Description

A rare and elegant writing desk in the neoclassical style, made of rosewood veneer in the center and amaranth veneer around the edges; it opens with a flap trimmed in embossed leather, revealing four compartments and six drawers, and in the lower section by two doors; very beautiful, opulent yet understated, with chiseled and gilded bronze hardware featuring a Greek fret motif A beautiful model on a plinth, with elegant proportions, Inlaid marble top This is a piece that is "partially" Louis XVI in style, with modifications to the interior of the secretary's cabinet and some replaced parts, which is reflected in the price Nevertheless, a superb and rare piece, in very fine condition, attributable to Montigny (Philippe Claude Montigny) or to Carlin (Martin Carlin)
