

Majolica Plate With The Papal Coat Of Arms, Albani, Italy, 18th Century

1 000 EUR

Signature : Manifattura romana del XVIII secolo

Period : 18th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Porcelain

Diameter : 36 cm

Description

Polychrome majolica plate with a rim decorated with stylized plant motifs in ochre and blue. In the center is a prominent ecclesiastical coat of arms depicting the triple crown and the crossed keys of the papacy, surmounting the Albani family shield--an azure field with a six-pointed star and three golden mountains--the coat of arms of the family that gave the Church Pope Clement XI (1700-1721). This piece was likely commissioned by the family or for a celebratory occasion, and stands as a testament to 18th-century Italian ceramic production in the heraldic tradition.
