Description

Brass and copper umbrella stand, early 20th century
An elegant square brass umbrella stand with four tubular posts topped with turned knobs. The structure rests on a copper drip tray designed to catch water from umbrellas. Its understated and balanced design, inspired by a reimagined Louis XVI style, allows it to blend seamlessly into both classic and contemporary interiors. The metal's beautiful patina attests to its age and lends it an authentic charm. A functional and decorative piece, ideal for an entryway, foyer, or vestibule. Period: early 20th century, circa 1900-1920. Materials: brass and copper. Condition: generally good condition for its age, with patina and slight signs of wear consistent with its age. Dimensions: Height: 60 cm Width: 22 cm Depth: 22 cm Early 20th-century
