Description

Art Nouveau-style Japanese-inspired display cabinet in mahogany and mother-of-pearl. Late 19th century - circa 1890/1900. A charming Japanese-style display cabinet, crafted from mahogany and mahogany veneer, characteristic of late 19th-century Art Nouveau taste. This piece features a very elegant asymmetrical design, inspired by the Far Eastern arts that were in vogue at the time. The upper section is adorned with an openwork pediment centered by a marquetry motif depicting a bird in flight. On the left, a display cabinet with a glass door and glass shelf provides a setting for trinkets or collectibles. On the right, open shelves are embellished with dynamic cutouts and delicate pyrographed floral motifs. The door of the lower cabinet features a finely engraved Japanese-style design depicting bamboo, flowers, butterflies, and a stylized bridge, enhanced with mother-of-pearl inlays. The posts, brackets, and crossbars are richly openwork and carved, emphasizing the piece's lightness. The cabinet rests on four curved legs joined by a crossbar. A refined decorative piece, ideal for an Art Nouveau, eclectic, or Japanese-inspired interior. Dimensions: Height: 178 cm Width: 73 cm Depth: 35 cm Condition: In good overall condition. Some signs of use and slight wear consistent with the piece's age. Note: there are a few small gaps in the mother-of-pearl inlays and slight signs of age that do not affect the overall aesthetic.
