Description

Carved and gold-leafed wooden frame, Dutch or Flemish, end -18th century. It features beautiful architectural molding adorned with beaded friezes, stylized foliage motifs, and relief-carved moldings. The wide, sloping groove retains a particularly attractive antique patina, revealing the red base in places beneath the original gilding. The piece as a whole attests to the high quality of craftsmanship characteristic of frames intended for paintings from the Northern schools. Its harmonious proportions and depth make it an ideal setting for a 17th- or 18th-century Dutch or Flemish panel painting. The antique gilding shows signs of wear, scuffs, and minor restorations typical of its age, which attest to its authenticity and add to its charm. Origin: Holland or Flanders Period: Louis XV, Louis XVI, circa
