Description

This gilded wooden trumeau in the Louis XVI style stands out for its elegant verticality and the harmony it creates between decorative art and landscape painting. The upper section features a delicately executed figurative painting depicting a serene rural scene: a winding path leading to a house with light-colored walls, flanked by a slender tree, while a river with a gentle spillway brings a sense of freshness and movement. The presence of a figure walking toward the house introduces a subtle narrative dimension, enhancing the composition's poetic quality.A tall, slender tree--majestic and protective--structures the scene and creates a harmonious verticality. In the background, bluish hills fade into a misty atmosphere, giving the whole scene an almost romantic depth.The gilded wooden frame structures the composition with simplicity and refinement. Its straight lines and understated decoration evoke a classical aesthetic, highlighting the canvas without overwhelming it. The lower portion is occupied by a mirror that reflects light and enlarges the space, faithful to the original function of trumeaux in elegant interiors.The piece forms a decorative work of timeless charm, where the softness of the painted landscape interacts with the nobility of the gilding, creating an object that is both functional and artistic.Period: 1900The frame and canvas are in good conditionThe mirror section reveals an antique silvered surface, marked by a few pinholes and slight black marks (see photos)Dimensions:Height: 136 cmWidth: 75 cmDepth: 5 cmShipping available upon quote in France and internationallyReference 566Vhttps://www.antiquites-lecomte.com/boutique/miroirs/miroir-trumeau-en-bois-dore-style-louis-xvi-1900/
