Description

This Art Deco pedestal table captivates with its perfect balance of geometry, elegance, and the beauty of its wood. Its circular top, with clean lines and a smooth surface, highlights a warm grain that attests to the quality of the material and the cabinetmaker's craftsmanship. The piece rests on four curved legs, typical of the decorative style of the 1930s, which create a harmonious interplay of curves while ensuring a solid and refined structure. These legs converge on a circular base, forming a cohesive structure that is highly representative of the Art Deco aesthetic: symmetry, purity of form, and controlled proportions. The subtle contrast between the curves of the legs and the geometric precision of the double circle (top and base) gives the piece a sculptural, almost architectural presence. This side
