Description

Lotus dining table attributed to Vivai del Sud This is a vintage dining table made of fine reeds, bamboo, and rattan, shaped like a flower with large petals, on which rests a round, beveled glass top. The glass top offers an unobstructed view of the artistic wicker frame, creating an airy and open atmosphere. The use of reeds highlights the quality and craftsmanship. These tables are attributed to Vivai del Sud, a leading Italian manufacturer of luxury furniture and interiors founded in 1950 in Rome by the Di Pierri brothers. The frame shows some wear on the leg, and there are slight signs of wear and patina consistent with its age and use. The tabletop has only barely noticeable micro-scratches. The frame measures 105 cm wide and 73 cm high. The tabletop has a diameter of 122 cm and is 2
