Description

Bronze bust of a child on a marble column - 19th centuryCharming bronze bust of a child with a beautiful brown patina, resting on an elegant column of veined gray marble.The child is depicted with an expressive face, plump cheeks, and finely rendered curly hair, in a neoclassical style inspired by 18th-century models. The antique drapery covering one shoulder reinforces the classical character of this sculpture.The bronze is mounted on a turned pedestal, which is in turn secured to a molded marble column, creating a refined decorative ensemble that will naturally find its place in a classical interior or a cabinet of curiosities.Beautiful quality of casting and chiseling. Well-preserved antique patina.Period: 19th century.Materials: bronze with a brown patina and a veined gray marble
