Description

An expressive and beautifully crafted wooden cherub head, carved and polychromed, resting on a square base covered with marbled handmade paper and bearing the signature of Bovio (mid-20th century). A generous size and highly lifelike, this lovely "putti" head possesses all the charm of the 18th century with its polychrome finish in soft, weathered colors. Worthy of a "Cabinet of Curiosities," this decorative piece fits perfectly into any setting; its expressiveness will captivate you with its presence. In very good condition and of great decorative value, this lovely sculpture embodies the spirit of Italian works intended to adorn places of worship and private homes in a distinctly Baroque style.
