Description

Library staircase on casters, late 19th / early 20th century. Large, mobile wooden library staircase, likely from a library, archive, or department store. Made of dark-stained wood, likely oak or beech, with an open-sided railing structure and a sturdy handrail running along the steps. The lower section is fitted with four original cast-iron wheels, which allowed the staircase to be moved across the floor. In very good condition. Beautiful color and patina. Dimensions: 251H x 148L x 61W
