Description

An elegant silver business card holder or cigarette case from the 1930s, perfectly illustrating the refined aesthetic of the Art Deco period.

Rectangular in shape, it is distinguished by its geometric design of parallel flutes in slight relief, creating a subtle play of light and shadow characteristic of the style. Its clean lines and meticulous silversmithing reflect the taste for modernity and luxurious simplicity characteristic of Art Deco creations. The interior, accessible via a discreet hinge, provides an elegant way to store business cards, banknotes, or cigarettes. A piece that is both functional and decorative, sought after by collectors of Art Deco objects and enthusiasts of 20th-century silverware. A fine example of Art Deco design, combining functionality, elegance, and modernity.
