Description

A valuable treatise on law by Gérard de Maynard in two substantial In4 volumes in a period Henri IV temporary binding; printed in Paris in M. DC. VI. (1606). Published by Robert Foüet, on Rue Saint-Jacques, near the Mathurins. A remarkable copy despite the missing title page of the first volume. A rarity from the late Renaissance, published during the reign of King Henri IV, who died four years later, in a reinforced temporary binding covered with bluish paper, with titles and volume numbers in ink on white paper. Decorative binding of the period known as "temporary binding".... A complete work in two volumes containing: "The First and Second Parts of the Notable and Singular Questions of Written Law. Decided and Judged by Memorable Rulings of the Sovereign Court of the Parliament of
