Description

Rare flail mace from the 15th-16th centuries. A unique opportunity to acquire an exceptional flail mace. The flail consists of a striking head connected to a handle by a flexible system--whether a cord or a chain--regardless of the shape of the striking head. This mace is in excellent condition and is a truly rare piece. The handle is a later restoration, but in most cases, the original wooden shafts are missing. A sword of museum quality, rarely on display! Specifications: Total length when extended: 83 cm Shank length: 45.3 cm Length of the ball and chain: 27.5 cm Length of the ball: 6.5 cm
