Description

China, Qing Dynasty, early 19th century, a very beautiful, finely carved statue depicting Chao Kung Ming, the Taoist god of fortune in his military form, seated on his tiger, with a flame rising in front of him at the front of the base. A votive box, still sealed, is attached to the back of the statue (rare). Wood, with traces of the original lacquer. Dimensions: Height: 22 (cm). The scale reference in the last photograph is a small model of a lighter from a well-known brand. Good condition aside from some slight wear and a few minor chips; nothing unusual given its age. We take special care with our packaging by using optimal protective materials. Shipping includes insurance.
