Description

This expressive oil on board still life depicts a richly coloured arrangement of pomegranates, with a freshly opened fruit revealing its jewel-like seeds at the heart of the composition. Executed by an unknown artist, the work is characterised by confident, painterly brushwork and a restrained yet luminous palette of crimson, burgundy, deep greens, and warm earthy browns. Thick impasto and energetic handling of paint create a tactile surface, while subtle shifts in light lend depth and atmosphere to the fruit against the dark background. The composition balances immediacy with intimacy, celebrating the natural beauty and symbolism of abundance associated with the pomegranate. Likely painted during the mid-20th century in an impressionistic realist manner, the work
