Description

A pair of paintings on canvas of the same dimensions, with dowel-jointed frames and identical gilded plastered wood framing. One depicts an outdoor scene in a park where two women and two men with small dogs are chatting in a somewhat lively park (perhaps discussing the purchase of a dog). The other depicts an interior scene in a richly decorated apartment in the 18th-century style, featuring an LXV billiard table. Two men of a certain age, leaning over the table, are discussing how to play the point... Meanwhile, at the other end of the table, a younger woman, sitting on the edge, is talking with a man her age who, standing very close to her, seems to be courting her... The paintings are in good, used condition; the billiards painting was previously restored (one piece). Can be sold
