Description

Orientalist bronze sculpture with a brown patina, signed J. J. Salmson, depicting a young Oriental musician standing, dressed in a rich traditional costume and playing the lute. This work stands out for the finesse of its modeling, the exceptional quality of its chiseling, and the meticulous attention to detail in the drapery, jewelry, headdress, and instrument. It rests on an ornate base decorated with fringes and Oriental-inspired motifs, perfectly illustrating the taste for Orientalism during the Belle Époque. With its substantial size, the quality of its cast iron, and the richness of its craftsmanship, this sculpture stands as a remarkable example of French decorative sculpture from the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Dimensions: Height: 125 cm Width: 25 cm Period: circa 1900.
