Description

An antique hair comb from the Belle Époque period, crafted from light-colored horn and adorned with an openwork metal frame set with numerous sparkles (high-quality rhinestones). Its delicate design, reminiscent of a flowering branch, can accommodate a feather that accentuates its theatrical character. Designed to be worn on the side or at the back of a bun, this model perfectly illustrates the feminine aesthetic of the years 1900-1915, when hairstyles were voluminous and enhanced by elaborate hair ornaments. The fastening system is complete and securely holds the hairpin in place on the comb. This piece is a remarkable testament to the art of women's adornment during the Belle Époque. Total height: 17 cm In very good condition.
