artifact from this period, in good condition considering its age and showing no signs of restoration, The colors are vibrant and give it a very distinctive character. A fine example of 19th- to 20th-century nomadic culture, in its original condition, which will appeal to connoisseurs. In southeastern Iran, around the city of Kerman, live the semi-nomadic Afshar tribe, the Afsharis. For a long time, these nomads lived in northwestern Iran. Part of the population moved to the southeast, where carpet weaving had been an important economic sector since the mid-19th century. These carpets feature shades of pink, red, ochre, various blues, violet, and earth tones, and the majority of them feature geometric patterns. The most common pattern consists of a large central field with one or more square medallions. Some designs depict an animal hide stretched out before tanning. A typical feature of Afshar rugs is that they are often relatively wide compared to their length. Afshar carpets are also marketed under the name Sirdjan carpets. # The Qajar Dynasty (Qajar, Qadjar, Qajar, Persian: قاجار) was a Turkmen dynasty that ruled Iran from 1786 to 1925. This rug has been professionally cleaned using eco-friendly methods. It shows signs of wear, which lend this type of ethnic rug its authentic character. A beautiful piece thanks to its construction, the quality of the wool, and the design.
