Description

A pedestal handcrafted in Italy in the 1950s, entirely carved from two varieties of solid marble. Weighing approximately 150 kg, this imposing architectural piece combines exceptional craftsmanship with the timeless elegance of natural stone. The pedestal features a striking combination of contrasting marbles, carefully selected to highlight its architectural form and create a refined visual balance. The beautifully polished surfaces reveal the rich veining and natural coloration of each marble, making every piece unique. Designed to support a sculpture, bust, urn, or monumental decorative object, this pedestal has a strong sculptural presence, even when displayed on its own. Its clean lines and fine materials make it perfectly suited for classical, neoclassical, and
