Description

19th-century solid fir sideboard
Elegant 19th-century solid fir sideboard, featuring a beautiful, warm honey-colored patina that highlights the wood's grain. The front features two drawers in the upper section and two molded doors that open to reveal a storage space equipped with a shelf. The understated and balanced front is adorned with drooping iron handles and beautiful cut-out iron keyholes, adding a touch of elegance to the piece. The top extends slightly beyond the sides, and the straight uprights and flattened ball feet give this piece harmonious proportions. Its shallow depth makes it easy to fit into an entryway, dining room, or kitchen. The piece is sound, stable, and in very good condition, featuring a lovely original patina. The lock is functional and comes with its key.
