Description

This remarkable Bauhaus stool, made in Germany around 1920, embodies the movement's revolutionary approach to form and function. Its tubular steel frame, elegantly curved into a sculptural base, combines stability with visual harmony--an iconic hallmark of modernist genius. The original dark brown leather seat features a beautiful patina, reflecting decades of use and authenticity. Its wear and tear enhances the stool's character and offers a tactile reminder of the Bauhaus ideal: authentic materials and timeless functionality. Compact and expressive, this stool can serve as both a functional seat and a decorative element, blending seamlessly into minimalist, industrial, or eclectic interiors. Seat diameter: 36 cm.
