Description

Max Albert Carlier (1872-1938) - Oil on panel - Still Life with a Vase of Roses
Oil on panel depicting a bouquet of heirloom roses in shades of yellow, pink, and red, accented with lilac stems and small white wildflowers, arranged in a wide-necked gilded vase. Signed lower right by the Belgian painter Max Albert Carlier (1872-1938), a specialist in still lifes of flowers, fruit, and farmyard scenes. Working primarily in oil, he traveled extensively in Italy and lived for a time in France (notably in Brittany). His style is characterized by an absolute mastery of light, meticulous realism, and a profusion of colorful floral details, following in the tradition of the great 17th-century masters of the genre.
Late 19th century - early 20th century
