Description

Elegant white marble fireplace mantel with grey veining, finely carved in the Neoclassical style.

The shaped frieze features a central oval medallion and molded reserves, framed by refined carved details. The side jambs are decorated with molded panels, scroll motifs and restrained classical ornamentation, typical of 19th-century taste.

The piece is distinguished by the quality of the marble, its natural grey veining and the harmonious balance of its proportions. The mantel is shown dismantled, with all visible elements presented in the photographs. Minor signs of age and use, small chips and old marks are present, consistent with its period and function.

Period: 19th century
