Description

A striking and rare cigar or cigarette holder, crafted from a piece of a crab claw and mounted in silver. One end is serrated and intricately crafted; the other is a cone that has been re-drilled, into which the tip of the claw fits. The body of the cigar holder is in perfect condition; the thick shell has natural pitting. Probably solid silver, unhallmarked; may be an English piece.

Late 19th or early 20th century. Perfect condition.
