Description

This elegant French Duchesse Brisée dates from the 19th-century and is a beautiful example of refined French seating furniture. Comprising a comfortable bergère armchair and its matching detached ottoman, the ensemble was designed to provide exceptional comfort while retaining a graceful and sophisticated appearance. The name Duchesse Brisée refers to this two-piece configuration, allowing the ottoman to be positioned freely or used independently. Crafted with solid walnut legs finished in a rich ebonized tone, the chair and ottoman both stands on their original brass castors, combining elegant proportions with practical mobility. The generous proportions, gently scrolling arms, and deep upholstered seat make it an inviting piece for everyday use while remaining faithful to its historical character. The matching ottoman mirrors the elegant lines of the chair, creating a harmonious silhouette that is equally suited to a traditional interior or a more contemporary setting. The upholstery is in very good condition and features a refined floral linen fabric in soft cream tones with delicate blue flowers, perfectly complementing the warm tones of the ebonized walnut. Decorative brass nailhead trim provides a subtle finishing touch. Whether placed in a living room, bedroom, library, or boutique hotel interior, this Duchesse Brisée offers both decorative appeal and genuine comfort. A timeless French design that combines elegance, versatility, and craftsmanship.
