Description

An exceptional pair of 19th-century "Vieux Paris" porcelain vases in the Medici style, mounted on pedestals. These elegant vases feature a refined decoration of Japanese-inspired scenes, finely hand-painted, which were very much in vogue in the 19th century under the influence of Japonism. Each vase features a different design on the front and back, depicting lively landscapes with figures, architecture, and scenes of exotic daily life, all executed with great finesse. The contrast between the deep, dark background and the rich gold gilding lends the pieces a remarkable presence. The side handles are adorned with bearded male heads in relief, adding a sculptural touch and a distinct neoclassical character. Exceptional decorative quality and craftsmanship. Period: 19th century Height: 37.5
