Description

Attributed to Huber Robert: 18th-century watercolor depicting an architectural caprice and pastoral scene A superb watercolor and ink wash on late 18th-century period paper that we attribute to Hubert Robert; the signature is very difficult to decipher This delicate work depicts an architectural caprice or picturesque landscape--an artistic genre highly prized by collectors on the Grand Tour. The composition features an imposing ancient temple in ruins, subtly combined with a bucolic genre scene in the foreground: a seated shepherd playing music, surrounded by his herd--a horse, cows, sheep, goats--and a cart. Watercolor wash with pen and ink highlights on period paper. An old cursive inscription in ink on the right, resembling a signature, is present. Superb antique mounting with a Marie-Louise-style wash mat. Presented in its period gilded wooden frame, featuring a magnificent original patina. In beautiful overall condition for a document of this era. The paper displays a charming patina of age that attests to its authenticity. The frame has a few small chips and signs of wear on the gilding.
