Description

Pair of porcelain plates, decorated in blue. China, 18th century. Imperial quality. Hard-paste Chinese porcelain plates, Jingdezhen kilns, Qianlong period. Adorned with a design of plants, flowers, and emblems in cobalt blue underglaze, exquisitely painted. These pieces were undoubtedly made for export to Europe, yet their quality matches that of the finest porcelain produced for the Imperial Palace. The designs are exceptionally meticulous, complex, and required extraordinary craftsmanship. Creations of this caliber were executed by the finest painters at the Jingdezhen factory. This was a special commission placed by a prominent figure. It is possible that there was a complete service, though we are not aware of any other pieces of this quality. One dish is in perfect condition; the other
