Description

This Orientalist painting depicts an Eastern market (probably in the Maghreb or the Middle East) One can make out figures wearing djellabas and veils, pottery, jars, and copper trays in the foreground, beneath a canvas tent or awning, creating a souk atmosphere. This is a theme much loved by Orientalist painters. Oil on canvas applied with a palette knife and brush, thick strokes, free and very lively, work in masses of color rather than details, warm palette: ochres, earth tones, reds, beiges. This is clearly a Post-Impressionist/Modernist style, typical of the second half of the 20th century. An Oriental subject reinterpreted in a modern style, with a very beautiful gilded wooden frame. The signature in the lower right corner appears to read very clearly: "Colomina" (cursive script, well
