Description

Two-section cabinet sideboard in molded walnut - Louis XIII period, 17th century An important two-section sideboard in solid walnut, in the Louis XIII style, dating from the 17th century. This beautifully crafted piece features a richly molded front composed of four doors with raised panels and three drawers in a band, topped by a dentil cornice that lends it a classic elegance and a striking presence.The piece is crafted from solid walnut with a warm patina acquired over the centuries. The side panels are adorned with understated carved decorations, typical of French furniture of this period, while the doors feature antique hardware and original lock plates.The interior, recently lined with red fabric, offers ample storage space spread across several levels. This lining, which can easily be reversed if
