Description

Limoges enamel on copper depicting a saint with a halo holding a book and a flask, a work from the late 16th century. The plaque is preserved in its rare, finely molded oval gilded bronze frame--a type of framing much less common than wooden or ebony mounts, which is what makes it so interesting. The enamel has a few visible cracks and small chips, consistent with its age. The reverse side retains old collector's labels. A beautiful piece from the French Renaissance.
